GST Health-Check: 10 Questions Every Finance Team Should Ask

A quick self-assessment to spot input tax credit leakage, reconciliation gaps and notice risk before the department does.

October 2026 · www.allnineservices.com

Use this as a quarterly self-review

Answer each question honestly. Every “no” or “not sure” is a place where money or risk may be hiding.

1. Do we reconcile our purchase register with GSTR-2B every month before claiming input tax credit?
2. Are vendor GSTINs validated when vendors are onboarded?
3. Do we reverse credit on time for invoices still unpaid after 180 days?
4. Are our HSN/SAC codes and tax rates reviewed by someone qualified?
5. Do our e-invoicing and e-way bill processes match the values reported in returns?
6. Do GSTR-1 and GSTR-3B liabilities reconcile with each other every month?
7. Are we treating inter-branch and related-party supplies correctly?
8. Have we identified transactions that attract reverse charge?
9. Do we track and respond to departmental notices within the timelines given?
10. Is our annual return reconciled with the audited financial statements?

What to do next

If you answered “no” or “not sure” to three or more questions, a structured GST review is worth the time. Our review covers credit optimisation, classification, reconciliations and documentation, and ends with a prioritised action list.

This checklist is general information, not tax advice.
